Project Recipe:

1. Start with a piece of Watercolor paper measuring 4 x 5 1/4. Use your sponge wedge in the lightest color Daffodil Delight. Start from the bottom and rub the color in until you get the desired color of ink.
2. You will then use another sponge and add the next shade of color Mango Melody and blend this one slightly into the Daffodil Delight color. You will repeat this for each color blending slightly into each color. I suggest you go in this order

Melon Mambo, Gorgeous Grape, and Night of Navy.

3. Night of Navy is used very little here and really just at the top of the page and slightly around the edges of the watercolor paper.
4. Take a piece of Basic Black 1 1/2 by 5 1/2 rub your embossing buddy over it and then stamp the detailed mountain image on it. Sprinkle your black embossing powder over the image flicking off the extra, then heat powder and cut out the image,
5. Once you are sure your blended background is dry you may take the solid mountain image (remember these are reversible imaged stamps) and stamp in basic black or basic gray. I used Basic Gray.
6. Once you have the basic gray mountains stamped, mask them with a post-it note or Stamping mask paper (by inkadinkado) and then you can stamp in your moon in Poppy Parade using the second-generation method. Otherwise, you will want to take some off with your aqua painter.
7. Once everything is dry on your watercolor base piece take and flick water with your fingers or aqua painter. I used my fingers. Then take a dry paper towel and dab at the watercolor paper pick up the water off of the card.
8. Stamp Just Breath or any sentiment that you choose. Just Breath is from the Colorful Seasons stamp set. I used my stamparatus so that I could go over the sentiment several times to make sure that it was really colored in,
9. For the finishing touches use a chalk marker to put some ice on the mountains if you so choose. Place dimensionals on your mountain range and stick them over your stamped mountains on your card.
10. You can now add the card front to your base of Poppy Parade cut 5 1/2 x 8 1/2, scored at 4 1/4. I placed a piece of Whisper White cardstock on the inside of the card for sentiment at a later date when I decide who will get this lovely card.
